About myself	With a Master's Degree in English and a rich background encompassing theology, pedagogy, and psychology, I am a seasoned educator whose expertise extends well beyond the conventional classroom. My skill set is comprehensive, reflecting years of experience in language teaching, translation, and the creation of compelling educational content. My proficiency is further enhanced by hands-on experience as a nanny and au-pair, roles that honed my interpersonal and caregiving abilities. As a parent to two successful, kind-hearted adults who are continuing their academic journeys, I am proud to have played a role in shaping their futures. My professional journey is marked by an unwavering commitment to fostering knowledge and promoting achievement across diverse educational capacities. With 25 years of experience working with children of all ages, from caring for infants to teaching adolescents, my versatility is evident. I have prepared soldiers for Stanag exams in Strakonice, and have instructed high school and postgraduate students in social studies, English, pedagogy, and psychology in Breznice, Czech Republic. My contributions include assisting with seminar and diploma works, as well as coordinating a program that brought international students to teach English and share their cultures. My experience also spans working as a teacher assistant and a er-school educator, where I supported a student with autism and volunteered to teach Czech to a boy from Azerbaijan. Additonally, I have offered discounted Czech lessons to Ukrainian students, demonstrating my dedicaton to volunteerism and educational outreach. My career is a testament to my passion for education and my ability to adapt to various teaching environments, making a lastng impact on students' lives
