About myself	I teach children and I really like it! I have had a variety of students, from small children to adults and business professionals. Over the years I really understood how to approach different groups, how to understand their skills, expectations, goals, and adjust my teaching accordingly. I've managed to help my students meet their goals time and again. Whether it was passing a certain language exam, getting to a foreign university, or succeeding in a job interview in English. I enjoy helping people reach their goals, and will try my best to do the same with your students.
