About myself	I am an experienced and creative educator who uses personalised teaching methods to inspire, mentor, and support children. With excellent verbal and written communication skills, I am socially perceptive and skilled at adapting to each child's individual needs. I create stimulating, technology-free environments that keep children engaged while encouraging curiosity, independence, and resilience. I pride myself on offering each family a bespoke service tailored to their specific requirements. While I brand myself as a Governess, I bring flexibility to my role, including PA duties, ensuring the smooth running of the household. My active, playful personality allows me to create a positive learning atmosphere, and I am always willing to get fully involved in children's daily activities.

As a trusted private tutor, I have successfully prepared children for admission into London's most competitive schools, providing exam preparation, ESL, and tailored academic support. Alongside structured, curriculum-based lessons, I integrate learning into everyday experiences such as cooking, crafts, nature exploration, and sports. I encourage problem-solving over ready-made answers, helping children build resilience, confidence, and independence. In addition, I teach life skills including manners, etiquette, and social awareness. I hold an HND in Business Management Sciences from WLCBMS.

With extensive experience in VVIP and high-profile households, I am discreet, professional, and immaculately presented at all times. Over the years, I have developed a niche skill set that integrates seamlessly into private households, consistently delivering a first-class, tailored service. My impeccable references reflect both my professionalism and my ability to adapt to the unique expectations of each family.

I live and work by the motto: "No problems, only solutions" — an ethos that defines my professional approach and unwavering commitment to excellence.
